BALINESE ROOF SHAKES

By Andrew Rossiter for the New York Times

BALI, Indonesia — A powerful earthquake struck the island of Bali on Wednesday, shaking the roofs of many buildings and causing significant damage. The quake, which measured 6.2 on the Richter scale, was felt across the island and in neighboring countries. In the town of Ubud, a popular tourist destination, several buildings were damaged, and a large crowd gathered in the town square. The earthquake was the strongest to hit Bali in over a century.

PUP goes green to save Pasig River

By [Name]

MANILA, May 14 (PDI) — The Philippine Urban Planning and Design Council (PUP) has launched a new initiative to save the Pasig River, a major waterway in the capital city. The council, which is a government agency, has announced that it will be working with the local government to create a green belt along the river. This will involve planting trees and other vegetation to help improve the water quality and provide a natural barrier against pollution. The council also plans to create a network of walking and cycling paths along the river, which will provide a safe and healthy environment for residents to enjoy. The initiative is part of a larger effort to improve the urban environment in Manila and to promote sustainable development.

Consumer lending on the rise, BSP says

Gov't seeks to credit growth in RP

Manila, May 11—The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) said today that consumer lending in the Philippines has grown by 10.5 percent in the first quarter of 2009, compared to the same period last year.

The BSP said that the growth in consumer lending was driven by a combination of factors, including a decline in the interest rate on consumer loans, a rise in the number of banks offering consumer loans, and a rise in the number of consumers using credit cards.

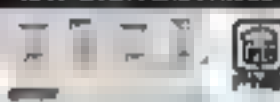

The BSP said that the growth in consumer lending is a positive sign for the Philippine economy, as it indicates that consumers are confident enough to borrow money.

The BSP said that it will continue to monitor the consumer lending market closely, and will take appropriate measures to ensure that the market remains stable and healthy.

Why Singaporeans do well in math

By W. H. Hui
Singaporeans are known for their high performance in mathematics. This is due to a combination of factors, including a strong emphasis on mathematics education from a young age, a rigorous curriculum, and a culture that values academic achievement.

One of the main reasons for this success is the early introduction of mathematics in the primary school curriculum. Students are required to study mathematics from the age of six, and this subject remains a core part of their education throughout their primary and secondary years.

Another key factor is the quality of the teachers. Singaporean teachers are highly qualified and receive extensive training. They are also encouraged to use a variety of teaching methods to ensure that all students understand the concepts being taught.

Finally, the cultural emphasis on education plays a significant role. Parents and society as a whole value academic achievement, and this creates a supportive environment for students to excel in their studies.

It is important to note that while Singaporeans excel in mathematics, this does not mean they are not well-rounded individuals. They also excel in other areas of study and in their professional and personal lives.

Curriculum to attract

The curriculum is designed to be both challenging and engaging. It includes a mix of theoretical concepts and practical applications, ensuring that students can see the relevance of what they are learning.

Digital rather than formulaic

Modern mathematics education focuses on understanding the underlying principles rather than just memorizing formulas. This approach helps students develop critical thinking and problem-solving skills.

Teachers are well-trained

Teachers undergo rigorous training and are encouraged to use a variety of teaching methods. They are also provided with ongoing professional development opportunities to stay current in their field.
